Comrades of Confederate Veter Present at Ceremony.

Maj. Albert Akers, a Confederate vet-eran, died Wednesday at the John Dick-son Home, at the age of seventy-three years.
Funeral services were held yesterday "The informality and charming intimacy of American family life is a revelation to any one accustomed to the tradition that American mothers spend their time buying gowns and playing bridge and that American fathers leave their offices only to sleep and eat," he says.

"The insufferable American child whom one meets in foreign hotels had added to the idea that he is neglected. On the contrary, I find, after visiting American that he enjoys parents' social.
